Last April SNAC hosted a well attended parent to parent information night on transitioning your child with special needs to high school.

Arlene Tennant (PTU Vice President Elementary) informed SNAC that many teachers at the delegates' weekend (during a workshop on special needs) had been discussing the need for more resources concerning assessment of children that had been brought up to resource. There seems to be a very long wait from the time the child is brought up to resource until the time the child is actually assessed. More psychologists are needed for assessment.

Governing Board members of every school are invited to vote if they would like one of their governing board members to be the IEP parent representative on their governing board. It is a way for SNAC to have an open line to the governing boards.
